3.6.2k16...Nā Wahine Kunia 'o Lihū'e continues to protect Ekahanui in the uplands of Lihū'e. A rescheduled clean-up day was very productive. HCCW lālā ho'okama, Sheila Valdez, with her daughter Kehaulani and her granddaughter Gabriella; HCCW nā lālā 'ōiwi Leilehua Keohookalani, Vicki Pakele, and Robert "Lopaka" Oliveira Jr. cleared invasive grasses and fallen tree branches. Hopefully, bulldozer operators will avoid these ancestral sites. Efforts continue with meetings to raise awareness to malama.

3.7.2k16...Translator, Junko Nishida of the "Museum of Japanese Emigration to Hawaii" returned for a visit.

Located on Yamaguchi island, Japan, the Museum is dedicated to those Japanese citizens who migrated to Hawaii. February 8, 1885, during the reign of King David Kalakaua, in agreement with Emperor Meiji of the Empire of Japan, 153 Japanese immigrants arrived in Hawaii as contract laborers for sugarcane and pineapple plantations. Junko is working with Kalimapau of HCCW on a Kūkaniloko Exhibit for their Museum.

Importance of Kūkaniloko as a navigational training site here in the sacred uplands of lihu'e, wahiawā, halemano is the focus of this Exhibit. In May 2007, Hawai'i's replica ancient voyaging canoe Hōkūle'a visited this small island to honor the connection between Suō-Ōshima and Hawai'i. An extremely important part of the Hōkūle'a rigging was in need of replacement. Island resident, Mr. Yoshitsugu Fuji, carved and prepared this piece for the crew. Although Mr. Fuji has passed away, his piece has since been returned and is now on display in the Museum.

3.8.2k16...Haumana from Anahola Hawaiian Homestead Kanuikapono Charter School of Kauai, planned to visit Kūkaniloko with Kumu Pua Kamealoha Gomes and other chaperones. Pua recently relocated from Wai'anae, O'ahu island for a teaching position on Kauai island. Unfortunately, it was the day of our first real winter storm and their visit was cancelled. With a very full schedule for their O'ahu huaka'i, we will wait for their next visit to our island. We were, however, able to give pa'akai to their kumu who in turn shared with the haumana-mai kakou e pu pa'akai.

'Āina Kūkaniloko

'Āina - family ... we come from this land, we return to this land, we are this land! This photo was placed online by unknown visitors to Kūkaniloko. They were fascinated with the shadows of their family cast upon the access road by the late afternoon sun setting in the Komohana behind them. It reminds us of our connection as 'Āina Kūkaniloko. 'ike 'āina - know your family; malama 'āina - take care of your family; aloha 'āina - love your family...eō mai la
